

Nike Slingshot Clubs Tips

Want to lower your score and improve your game? While skill is no doubt a crucial element on the links, the right clubs can make all the difference.

When choosing the best set of clubs for you, consider the Nike Slingshot. Names "Irons of the Year" by Golf Digest in the United States, Nike Slingshot golf clubs can certainly bring an improved quality and a new consistency to your game. Don't expect miracles, however; not even the most tightly made performance clubs can guarantee a hole-in-one.

Nevertheless, Nike made a solid attempt in designing a high-performance set of clubs. The Slingshot clubs have a low center of gravity, ensuring that the head meets the ball squarely. This means a higher-flying trajectory and a softer landing.

Nike Slingshot golf clubs are also progressively designed. As you move into the longer-distance irons the weight will shift, moving the center of gravity closer to the clubface. By shifting the weight toward your toe, the launch angle at contact is reduced. As a result the ball spin rate increases, and the ball catches and holds the green easier.

Another feature of Nike Slingshot golf clubs is the type of steel that they're made from. The clubface is made with "cold-rolled" custom 455 stainless steel, providing a hitting surface that's more consistent than the cast clubfaces featured on most other clubs.

Nike adds a little more design flair to the material with space age computer numerically controlled (CNC) fabrication, a process that provides a consistent flattened mill to .002 of an inch. Engraved scoring lines on the clubs allow you to line up your shot for added accuracy.

The shafts of Nike Slingshot golf clubs are constant-weight graphite. This shaft is designed to boost club swing speed and maintain consistent feel throughout every club in the set. The shaft adds another degree of control for maximum distance, and it possesses stiffness that progresses down the line of irons, from the short game to the long irons.

It's not always easy to choose the best set of clubs to match your abilities and meet your needs. Nike Slingshot golf clubs, however, are a great high-performance option. After all, if Golf Digest considers them to be "Irons of the Year", they must be doing something right.